School is back in session

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

Kids were excited to be going back to school on Sept. 8, but it was anything but a smooth return to the classroom for some Bradford West Gwillimbury parents. South Simcoe Police were out in full force, attempting to ensure that motorists obeyed the rules of the road and put safety first, but there were plenty of issues in school zones.

Parking on both sides of the road created problems for school buses and pedestrians at St. Charles Catholic School on Simcoe Road – and curb repairs on Maplegrove reportedly added to the frustration of parents bringing their students to W.H. Day Elementary.

That was nothing compared to the traffic chaos at Chris Hadfield Public School.

Parents and students expected to be in the new Chris Hadfield PS on West Park Avenue for the start of the school year, but construction has been behind schedule.

Instead, students had to return to the temporary school location, at the old Bradford Public School building on Church St.

On the first day of classes, vehicles parked on the west side of Church, while the buses unloaded students on the east side of the road – reducing through traffic to a single lane. There were standoffs, as north and southbound vehicles faced off, until one or the other ceded the right-of-way. Vehicles turning, or attempting to back up to utilize the parking lot at Holy Martyrs of Japan Catholic Church, created hazards for pedestrians.

The new Chris Hadfield school is not slated to open until December.

Bylaw enforcement has stepped in to address the issues, according to Manager of Enforcement, Jon Popple.

"Town enforcement officers were also at multiple locations today," in the afternoon, focusing on Fred C. Cook, Chris Hadfield and W.H. Day schools.

"This focus resulted in compliance with the parking regulations and provided us the opportunity to educate parents on the parking rules."

"We will continue a focused enforcement strategy over the next weeks at all schools and attempt to gain compliance in the school zones."

Simcoe County District School Board Superintendent of Facility Services John Dance said that there are "a lot of different issues" that led to the delay in opening – including a lengthy process to acquire the property, issues with road access and servicing.

"We had to make the decision back in June," Dance said, to send the students back to the Bradford Public School location. The board and school council are planning an open house on Sept. 15, to explain the delays to parents.

There is a bigger problem looming: There is still no settlement with the Elementary Teachers' Federation of Ontario. ETO's 73,000 members, who began their job action on May 4, have announced that they would be stepping up what they call "work-to-rule" actions, by refusing to participate in parent-teacher night or field trips. Negotiations are ongoing.

Better pedestrian access at Lions Park

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

Bradford West Gwillimbury has set its sights on improving its network of trails and pathways - and Lions Park, off Colborne St., will see improvements as early as this fall.

Currently, pedestrians walking on Colborne can access the north end of the park via an asphalt and gravel path, north of the tennis courts. At the south end, pedestrians generally walk up the paved driveway that also handles vehicular traffic in and out of the park - since the sidewalk on the west side of Colborne ends at the drive.

A report to council on Aug. 18 noted that the existing gravel portion of the north pathway was washed out "from time to time" and should be upgraded; it recommends extending the path to connect Colborne and the park's parking lot, and paving the entire pathway.

Providing safe access at the south end is more problematic. Installation of a sidewalk beside the driveway has been requested - but there is insufficient space along the south side of the driveway, and too steep a grade along the north side. Instead, the report recommends designating a 1.5 metre strip of the driveway as a pedestrian walkway, painting the appropriate markings along the north side of the road.

Councillor Gary Baynes, chair of the Active Transportation Committee, noted that he originally requested that the walkway be located on the south side of the driveway, starting where the sidewalk ends - but staff pointed out "it's all about the sightlines of people driving in from the north and south." The trees and shade along the south side could make it difficult to see pedestrians.

"I'm very happy with the recommendation they came up with," Baynes said in council, as councillors voted in favour of the proposals.

Cost is estimated at $12,000, mostly for 120 metres of asphalt pathway, to be funded through the 2015 capital budget for Parks Improvements, and the Capital Expenditures reserve.

Celebrating a decade of patient care

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

Body In Balance Physiotherapy is celebrating 10 years of providing the gold standard in patient care.

Founded by the brother-sister team of Alessandro and Sonia Rosatelli, Body In Balance has continued to grow and expand, offering clients a wide range of treatment options, in its 3,500 sq. ft. of fully-equipped space in Bradford.

With 13 rooms, and 18 beds, Body In Balance can offer physiotherapy, massage therapy, acupuncture, advanced manual therapy, aquatic therapy, driver rehabilitation, work injury assessment and treatment, Radial Shock Wave, ultrasound, custom orthotics and braces.

"Physiotherapy is our focus, but we've expanded to provide a holistic approach, a complete approach," says Sonia Rosatelli.

Clients come from across Bradford West Gwillimbury, but also from farther afield – from Richmond Hill, Beeton, Alliston and Barrie.

"It's built on reputation," says Sonia. "Because we take a very personal approach, we treat people as family. We try to address all the issues, leave no issue unresolved."

"People are really happy with that approach, because they feel like they are getting a full rehabilitation solution."

Holland Marsh flag-raising

Tuesday, Sept. 15 marks the 90th anniversary of the start of the Holland Marsh Drainage project. It was on Sept. 15, 1925, that the big dipper dredge began excavating the canal that rings the Holland Marsh, Ontario's Vegetable Garden.

"The dredge was supposed to start work on Monday, but it had rained all day, so the start was postponed until Tuesday – a bright, sunny day... today, we talk about the Holland Marsh as a resource that has always been here, but if Dave Watson, W.S. Fraser and Professor W.H. Day hadn't proposed and implemented this drainage scheme, it could well be a Class 1 Wetland in today's world."

That was what local historian George Jackson wrote five years ago, on the occasion of the 85th anniversary of the scheme. At the time, he proposed a toast to the pioneers of the marsh and the start of the drainage project, adding, "I doubt we will organize a flag-raising event to remember the occasion."

On Tuesday, Sept. 15 at 3 p.m., join Bradford West Gwillimbury's mayor and members of council, and representatives of the Holland Marsh Growers Association, for a flag-raising at the Bradford Courthouse on Holland St. East. They will be raising the HMGA flag, to mark the anniversary.

Point of View

Another national failure

The Syrian crisis. The gut-wrenching photo of three-year-old Alan Kurdi, lifeless and facedown on the sand, has not only crystallized the tragedy of Syrian refugees, it has put a human face on yet another failed policy of the Conservative federal government.

The Harper government initially set a limit of 1,300 Syrian refugees – but struggled to meet even that target. By cutting immigration staff, by insisting that the vast majority of refugees must be privately sponsored and setting high financial guarantees, by increasing the red tape and complexity of the paperwork, by underspending on the Immigration portfolio by $100 million, the government practically guaranteed that the target would not be met.

Now, Harper has announced that Canada will be accepting up to 10,000 Syrian refugees, over the next three years.

That's hardly an emergency response to a critical situation – especially since the fiscal and bureaucratic restrictions have not been eased, nor has there been any national effort to address the crisis, as there was when Canada welcomed 60,000 Vietnamese boat people in just 18 months.

Let's put this in perspective. There are an estimated 4.1 million Syrian refugees that have fled the double hammer of civil war between the regime of Bashar al-Assad and rebel forces, and ISIL advances in the area. Turkey has taken in over 2.13 million refugees; Lebanon, over 1.2 million. Even Sweden, with a population of under 10 million, has accepted more than 30,000 refugees.

So far, in 2015, the United Nations estimates that over 300,000 refugees – from Syria, Afghanistan, and Africa – have attempted the perilous crossing of the Mediterranean, and 3,500 have drowned.

The dead include not only Alan, but his five-year-old brother Galib, and mother Rehan.

And in Canada, once again it is the provinces, cities, organizations and individuals that are stepping in, attempting to fill the void created by the lack of a national response.

Tanaka opens Bradford office

MIRIAM KING/BRADFORD TIMES

Federal Liberal candidate for York-Simcoe, Shaun Tanaka cut the ribbon for her new canvassing centre at 21 Barrie St. in Bradford, Aug. 29. While her main office is in Queensville, Tanaka stressed the importance of having a local presence, across the riding. "Your whole job is public service. You have to make yourself accessible," she said. Tanaka has been canvassing door to door, five days a week, with teams out every day. "What people need to know is they have a choice," she said. "There's a lot of listening, a lot of questions... And one thing she has heard, going door to door, is that voters 'want change'... but also going back to the fundamental principles, things that we're proud to be as Canadians." She thanked supporters for coming out. "This is a testament to our team, to the enthusiasm, the energy, and the appetite for real change."

Letters to the Editor

WELCOME BACK TO THE STUDIO

To the editor: Twenty-five years ago, Zuzana Gabor – a member of the Canadian Music Teacher Association, teaching member of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Consultant for European Music Schools, MEd, RMT – established the Piano Music Studio in Bradford. The studio has had 600 students over its 25 years, with 10 students successfully finishing university music education. Zuzana Gabor has received two awards for her success in providing high quality music education, and over the years has organized several educational concerts, led by Canadian musicians such as Frank Horvath, Paul Côté, David Howard and Greg Keyes. At one concert, members of the Canadian National Dance Company taught students the minuet.

Piano Music Studio provides students with the opportunity to complete all levels of piano education. Every year, two to five students graduate from the program, finishing Level 8 – 10 by completing their examinations. In 2015 alone, 25 Piano Music Studio students finished their Royal Conservatory exams with First Class Honours – and special congratulations to Ryan Klassen, who scored a stunning 100%!

Due to Ms. Gabor's success in providing educational opportunities for her students, she has begun to organize an educational concert with National Opera Company soloist Jan Vackulic, who will perform with local pianist Times Agzerova-Powaza.

After several months away from her studio, Ms. Gabor is looking forward to a return to teaching this coming school year. She would like to extend her sincerest thanks to Danielle Scott, Times Agzerova-Powaza, and Mrs. Cheryl Ball for their invaluable help while she was away from the studio – and her students would like to congratulate her for offering high quality piano education in Bradford. Welcome back!

Farewell celebration at Healthy By Choice

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

For eight years, Healthy By Choice has been providing residents of Bradford West Gwillimbury with natural and organic products, health supplements, beauty and home care products and alternative health care options, under the guidance of owner Mary Brickell.

But situations change. Priorities change. And Mary and husband Gary have decided it's time to retire, and close the retail store, to spend more time with the couple's four children and eight (soon to be nine) grandchildren.

Healthy By Choice, located at 448 Holland St. West, will be holding a closing and retirement celebration, Sept. 15-19, when everything in the store - from health food products, to fixtures and freezers - will be on sale, for 50% off.

And at the end of September, Healthy By Choice will close its doors.

It wasn't Mary's original intention. For months, the Brickells searched for a knowledgeable buyer who would bring the same level of commitment, and be willing to take the store to "the next level," as the town's go-to health food store.

MIRIAM KING/BRADFORD TIMES
Mary Brickell, founder of Healthy By Choice, has decided to "retire" from retail, and will be closing the popular store in Bradford.

They thought they had found the perfect qualified buyers, but in the 11th hour, the partnership dissolved and the deal fell through. So next week, Healthy By Choice begins the process of closing.

Mary won't be retiring completely. She plans to maintain the website, continue to work from home as a health and nutrition consultant and trainer - and possibly explore new options in alternative care.

The Brickells could have sold the business to one of the many interested potential buyers, who had the dollars but neither the focus nor the knowledge to carry on as Mary had envisioned the business.

"She feels a responsibility to her customers," Gary explains.

Mary admits that the decision to close has been hard. She and assistant manager Debbie Tearne, who has been with the store since it opened eight years ago on John St. West, have shed some tears - and Mary calls the planned retirement celebration "bittersweet."

She will get to spend more time with the grandchildren, and get back to her primary interest, providing health education and advice, but "Bradford really needs a health food store," she says - a place like Healthy By Choice, offering healthy choices.

See www.healthybychoice.biz or call 905-775-3094 for more information, and drop by, Sept. 15 to 19, to shop, enjoy healthy snacks, and say goodbye.

A fundraiser for Millie

MIRIAM KING/BRADFORD TIMES

She baked up a storm - creating gluten-free carrot muffins, carrot cake and carrot soup - and "sold" samples for a $2 donation for Millie Arjoon, 3, has Ulrich Congenital Muscular Dystrophy, a rare form of MD that affects just 1 in 1 million. Her family is currently raising funds to make their Bradford home handicapped-accessible, and to equip it with the assistive devices that Millie will need as she grows. The goal is to raise $50,000, on GoFundMe. See www.ahomeformillie.ca for details or to donate.

The Chicken Barbecue Dinner at St. John's Presbyterian Church in Bradford was one of the most successful dinners to date. Not only was the event on Aug. 29 a sell-out, diners saw their platters piled high, with a half-chicken, salads, corn on the cob and home-made pie - and more than one guest asked for a take-out container, to take home the leftovers.

A view of the Morris Road Drain, looking south from Back St. in Bradford.

Moving forward with the Morris Road Drain improvements

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

Improvements to the Morris Drain are being proposed that will provide 100-year flood protection, improve Morris Road, and actually restore some of the backyard property of homes fronting on Townsend and Buce, land that over the years has been eaten away by the existing drain.

Engineer Kenn Smart appeared before Bradford West Gwillimbury Council on Sept. 1, to present his preliminary report and preferred option for consideration, for drainage improvements to the Morris Drain.

Built in 1830, to protect the "Small Scheme" - the original Bradford Marsh - the drain serves a watershed of approximately 380 hectares, only some of it farmland.

The preferred option includes a clear-out of brush and cleaning of the existing channel, south of the proposed Southeast Arterial Road (SEAR) route, which crosses Morris Road south of Back St. The work will include rebuilding most of the backyards along the drain, adding as much as 1 to 2 metres, and widening the Morris Road Allowance.

North of the SEAR route, a new drain would be constructed, that would cut east and south through the Bradford Marsh, with berming for flood control. Culverts would ensure that the water will continue to flow between old and new drains, creating a loop that will connect with the Holland Marsh "small canal" at both ends.

Smart estimated the total cost of the work at $1.667 million - which includes $807,500 for construction, $350,000 for engineering, and $500,000 for administration.

Of that amount, $130,000 would be assessed to the Bradford Marsh farmers within the drainage scheme. That works out to approximately $600 per acre; with the one-third OMAF (Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food) funding for drainage works, cost would be $400 per acre.

Smart recommended allowing farmers to pay that assessment over a number of years, to minimize the impact.

As for the remaining $1.737 million, he proposed that it be "100% paid by roads" - meaning that costs won't be assessed to individual "benefitting landowners" on urban lots within the drainage area, but to the entire municipality, easing the potential financial burden.

"Option 6 is one of the lower cost options," Smart noted. The only cheaper options are a simple clean-out of the existing drain, "or do nothing."

The cost estimate includes a contingency and "allowance for unforeseen" of almost 25%; if there are no appeals or other legal challenges, those costs could come down, he said.

Council voted to approve K. Smart Associates Ltd. to complete the engineering report on the Morris Road Drain, based on Option 6.

The next step will be a site meeting with "affected landowners" in October, final surveys carried out in November, and final design and drawings to be completed in Spring 2016. A Final Report will be submitted in Summer 2016, with construction taking place in 2016-2017.

The proposed work includes tributary drains - the Back St., Edward St., Simcoe Rd., Line 6 and Reid Branches - but Smart explained that, although he included about $140,000 for the work, it requires a petition from roads to move forward.

On Sept. 9, Queen Elizabeth II's tenure on the British throne reached another milestone, surpassing Queen Victoria's rule of 63 years, seven months and two days.

In Bond Head, St. Catherine of Alexandria Catholic Church (Byzantine Rite) held a public service celebrating the Queen's reign on Sept. 5 – the feast day of Elizabeth, the mother of John the Baptist, for whom the Queen is named, said Rt. Reverend Mitroed Archpriest Conrad Dachuck.

"We still have an allegiance to the British Monarch – not to her personally, but to the office. We honour the Queen today because on Sept. 9 she will become the longest reigning Monarch," said Father Dachuck, who presided over the service with Protodeacon David Kennedy, of St. Elias Parish in Brampton.

The service was also attended by members of the Royal Canadian Legion, veterans and cadets. There were prayers for the Queen's continued rule, asking for wisdom and guidance, "a long life, a peaceful life," and giving thanks "that we belong to a community of nations that values the human values... The very concept of human rights is a Christian concept,"

Father Dachuck said.

MPP Julia Munro brought greetings from the province, and noted that the service was held to celebrate not only the Queen's reign, but her office. "We have been the beneficiaries of a parliamentary system that recently celebrated its 800th anniversary," Munro said; the service offered an opportunity to come together to recognize "the incredible commitment of the person, but also to reflect on the values" she represents.

The service ended with the singing of God Save The Queen and O Canada, and tea, served in the hall.

Balance and the forces of nature

JIM MASIN

Special to the Bradford Times

We all enjoy the great outdoors -- although some of us define the words "great" and "outdoors" differently, based on our personal take on things, since we are each endowed with an ability to think, perceive, analyze, and opine.

Outdoors, to some of us, simply means enjoying the shade on a warm summer deck, while taking in the soft breeze and subtle fragrance of flowers -- and that's great! But to others, the great outdoors is more in line with mountain climbing, white water rafting, hiking and bird-watching -- also great!

Bottom line, though, we all feel more relaxed and at peace when we get back, in our own way, to whatever nature has to offer: simplicity, beauty, and participation.

Nature always strives for balance, and every creature that calls this planet home tries to live in balance with what nature provides.

We humans, the only earthly inhabitant gifted with choice, also strive for balance. When we achieve it, we are more giving, more fulfilled, and at peace. When balance is not with us, we feel stress, anxiety, are less likely to give. We need to understand that each of us has an effect on nature, and our choices make a difference.

When nature is oversupplied with one thing, she attempts to correct the imbalance -- and at present, nature is over-supplied with carbon dioxide. Hence extreme droughts in some parts of the world, flooding, extreme temperatures, hurricanes.

Why? Well, perhaps it's because Mother Earth is getting sick -- experiencing hot flashes, chills, fever, coughs, sneezes and perspiration.

When a loved one is sick, we naturally do everything we can to assist their recovery. On Oct. 3, come to Scanlon Creek to learn what you can do to help Mother Earth get better. Turn off your TV, put down your iPhone, come and re-energize by connecting with nature and all things natural, including trail hiking, games, and how to reduce your carbon emissions, in an easy, natural, 'non-compromising-to-our-lifestyle' way. And learn more about the Kilowatt Club, an energy-saving program being launched by the Friends of Scanlon Creek with support from the Lake Simcoe Region Conservation Authority and Lake Simcoe Conservation Foundation. Thanks, Mom and Dad

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

It's not often that students get to say 'thank you' to their families in a big way, for all the years of support and encouragement.

The "Thank You Mom and Dad" contest, a partnership between RBC and the Student Life Network, invited students registered with the network to thank their parents, guardians or mentors in stories, photos or videos - for a chance to win their parents a gift of $20,000.

The winner, drawn from 50,000 entries received, was 18-year-old Taylor Losak, a graduate of Bradford District High School about to enter the commerce program at Queens University in Kingston this fall.

Taylor, who joined the Student Life Network at the urging of her high school, wrote a 200-250 word essay while at school, during a spare period. In it, she called parents John and Kelly Losak "the most supportive, loving and driven people I have ever known..."

They support me in whatever situation arises and I know they are always behind me, ready to catch me when I fall - sometimes literally." Taylor learned of her win in July, and timed the delivery of the prize, which includes a vacation for two, for her dad's birthday.

"They were speechless," she says - and generous. "I gave it to my parents, and they gave it right back to me, for tuition."

The Losaks will keep the vacation, though, planning to head to Dominican Republic next year.

Mandy Mail, director of student banking at RBC, noted that statistics show 75% of students are supported in their education by their parents or guardians. "They get a lot of support from parents, both emotionally and financially," she said, and the partnership with Student Life Network allowed students to say thanks, for all the help. Mail called the entries "unbelievably heartwarming."

Student Life Network is

DAVID KALINASKAR/STUDENT LIFE NETWORK

Representatives of Student Life Network joined Wayne Brakeboer, RBC, in presenting a cheque for $20,000 to winners Taylor Losak, and parents John and Kelly, as family members look on.

"North America's fastest-growing provider" of contests, scholarships and expeditions, for high school, college and university students - partnering with top brands that include RBC, DELL and Live Nation, and creating and maintaining social networks at the schools.

"They know the students, they speak the language of the students," Mail said, adding that the relationship between RBC and SLN will be ongoing, with more contests "in the works."

Losak was also understandably enthusiastic about Student Life Network. "They always have awesome scholarship opportunities. I would totally recommend joining!"

John Losak is in Building Science engineering; his wife Kelly is the director of human resources for the Town of Bradford West Gwillimbury.

Heading back to school... Are you covered?

Toronto - As students get ready for university and college, the Insurance Bureau of Canada is reminding them of the importance of tenant's insurance. Notes Doug Deft-abbie, director of government relations with IBC in Ontario, "Even if you're renting on a temporary basis, it will help protect you and your belongings in the event of loss or damage."

Talk to your parents about coverage: you may be covered under their policy. In many cases, you can get coverage over the phone. All you will need is a list of your belongings, and an estimated value of the expensive items, to ensure accurate coverage. From furniture to expensive laptops, tenant's insurance will protect it.

When purchasing insurance, be sure to keep an updated record of everything you own. Taking photos or video of your belongings also helps.

Not only will the insurance cover your own losses, it provides protection if you cause unintentional damage to the building, or to others who live or place the unit, covers defence costs and potential settlements in case of a lawsuit by a third party - and it covers some additional expenses. If a fire occurs in your apartment, you will need a place to stay temporarily. Insurance will cover necessary and reasonable expenses while your apartment is being repaired.

Think you can't afford it? Remember - if something did occur, it would be financially straining to replace all of your belongings, cover the costs of damages to the apartment, and cover potential lawsuit fees. Getting coverage is just good insurance!

Find the right person and make the right "move" in the right direction...

There is no minimum donation to participate, but organizer Elsie Silvia Kniff has a goal: on this 35th anniversary of the Marathon of Hope, she'd like to raise $1 for every Bradford resident, matching Terry Fox's goal of $1 for every Canadian. There are an estimated 31,000 residents in Bradford West Gwillimbury. For more information, check out www.facebook.com/groups/Terry-FoxBradfordWestGwillimbury or visit terryfox.org and celebrate the 35th anniversary of Terry Fox's Marathon of Hope — when Fox ran through Bradford. Did you meet him then? Come out on Sept. 20

Savouring Simcoe's local foods

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

For an eighth year, Savour Simcoe brought together local producers and farmers, and local chefs for an afternoon of culinary adventure at the Simcoe County Museum, north of Barrie.

Set among towering pines and historic buildings, visitors could sample the results of pairings between Georgian College's culinary program and The Blueberry Place; Horseshoe Resort and El-Cam Farms - or the home-grown goods and recipes of R & P Farm Deli Cafe in Alliston, Nicholyn Farms on Horseshoe Valley Rd., and Dingo Farms, located in Bradford West Gwillimbury.

The goal of the event, hosted by Simcoe County Farm Fresh, has always been to promote local food in Simcoe County: both produce and the regional cuisine offered by outstanding local chefs, as well as the offerings of local wineries and artisanal breweries.

Savour Simcoe has also been an opportunity to sample concepts at the cutting edge of the culinary arts, from the now-famous combination of bacon and chocolate, to kale as a new staple.

This year's trends included medleys of lightly grilled fresh vegetables, served with a light dressing or topped with sheep's milk feta, and the innovative use of blueberries. Georgian College chef Phil Leach created a dish of blueberry smoked duck served with blueberry cream cheese on a blueberry blini that had visitors lining up for samples.

Chefs and growers were happy to talk with visitors, to explain their cuisine. Alba Lisa, owner of AlbaLisa All Natural Mexican Food in Alliston, served handmade tortilla chips with either a chunky or smooth salsa. From Monterey in northern Mexico, Alba Lisa explained that chunky salsa is more of a North American phenomenon; in her hometown, smooth salsa is "a staple... Everyone has a bottle. It's like our ketchup," but with a kick.

Morris Gervais of Berry Hill Farms surprised visitors with his Ontario-grown strawberries dipped in chocolate. They are from the new "day-neutral" varieties, that have allowed local growers to go beyond the idea that local strawberries are available only in Spring.

"They produce flowers, flowers, flowers. They'll be flowering in October," Gervais explained. "It's enabled us to lengthen the season," and supply grocery chains with Ontario-grown strawberries through the summer months.

"They have a different flavour," he acknowledged - firmer, less acid than spring-time berries, but perfect when paired with chocolate.

Marianne Den Haan of Sheld Creek Dairy, near Loretto, summed up the spirit of Savour Simcoe. Serving samples of whole milk from the dairy's own herd, Greek-style yogurt made with raspberries from London, Ont., and sweetened with local maple syrup, and a yogurt-based cream cheese made with herbs grown in Peterborough, Den Haan explained, "We try to source everything locally."
